

Dear Accenture hiring team,

I am currently looking to apply my knowledge and gain experience in a dynamic and inspiring environment.

The international profile of your company as well as its focus on learning and professional growth for its employees drove me to apply for this position. I am a dynamic team player always looking for new challenges.

My studies in addition to my professional experiences made me for sure develop a strong sense of commitment within the projects I undertake as well as a devoted team spirit and a close sensitivity to my customers' needs.

I'm confident that all these knowledge and experiences combined with the soft skills I have developed in extracurricular activities (such as my problem solving and debugging capabilities, my ability to learn quick and, mostly, my believing in the impossible) make me the right candidate for this position.

I might not be a master now, but I stand out from the crowd by my ability to become one.

If your job and company description honestly reflects the soul of your company culture, then I sincerely believe I am a perfect fit!

I would welcome the opportunity to explain more about my interest in your company and show my strong determination to join your staff.

Yours faithfully,

Ismail Joseph